Beaverbrook As Envoy?

Melbourne, Oct. 11.—Robert Elliott, war-time assistant to Lord Beaverbrook, the Canadian born newspaper magnate, suggested today through his group of Australian newspapers that Lord Beaverbrook be sent to Moscow "to clear up issues direct with Stalin."

Elliott, as personal assistant to the Minister of Aircraft Production, went to Moscow with Lord Beaverbrook in 1941. His newspaper said today that the British newspaper owner had "literally fascinated the Russian leader" and achieved a brilliant success with Stalin when no one else could have accomplished it.

It was learned today that the suggestion for a Beaverbrook mission had already been brought to the attention, informally, to Dr Herbert Evatt, the Australian Foreign Minister.—Reuters.

FIRE AT US CRUISER'S STERN

Some excitement was caused in the harbour shortly before the lunch hour today when a fire occurred on board a sampan moored at the stern of the visiting American cruiser St Paul.

The U.S. vessel sent out an international emergency signal at 12:47 p.m. reporting a fire, and immediately a Naval Dockyard fireboat was sent out. This was joined shortly after by a civil fireboat.

The fire was apparently caused by some aviation spirit spilling over the side of the cruiser, on whose deck a seaplane was being refuelled, on to the sampan, where the crew was doing some cooking. Four of the sampan's crew were injured, and they were treated in the sick bay of the U.S. vessel.

The fire lapped the stern of the St Paul, but she sustained no damage beyond scorched sides.

H.M. Dockyard received a message from the St Paul at 12:55 p.m. that the fire had been put out.

Paper Suspended

Nanking, Oct. 12.—The Ministry of the Interior notified the Shanghai Municipal Government today to suspend the newspaper Cheng Yen Pao for three days for "improper editorial comment."

The order did not specify which editorial caused the action.—Associated Press.

EDITORIAL

The Nationalists' Plight

NANKING officials are reported to have made up their minds that the military situation in North China has so seriously deteriorated that events of the next 60 days will determine the future control of the country north of the Yangtze. And this truly represents their opinion. It is tantamount to an admission that the Communists will turn out to be the winners, for there is little to be seen in the current battlefronts that holds out hopes for a decisive recovery on the part of the Nationalist troops. On the contrary today's reports disclose more reverses. Chefoo, the only Shantung port held by Government forces has fallen to the Communists, while the Reds are mounting a heavy offensive in the direction of Shantung. At Tsinan the Nationalist defenders are in a grave plight, and everywhere in North China the Communists appear to hold the initiative. Nationalist leaders are said to be deeply concerned over the possibility of wholesale defections by Nationalist troops during the next two months, and if the Tsinan debacle is a criterion they have good grounds for their pessimism. According to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, one of the primary reasons for the successive defeats suffered by his troops is their inability to treat the Communists as enemies. He calls it "psychological unhealthiness." But it may go deeper than that. It is possible that many of his soldiers feel that the Nationalist cause, represented as it is today by the law of decree, and displaying little of the virtues of democracy, is not worth sacrificing their lives for. Chiang has little to offer them other than a negative

HOPES FOR SOLUTION OF BERLIN DISPUTE FADE

Attitude Of West'n Powers Hardens

Paris, Oct. 11.—Hopes of an early solution to the Berlin problem dwindled today when it became known that the attitude of the Western Powers had hardened. The Western representatives' meeting at the French Foreign Office yesterday was understood to have agreed that:

- (1) The Berlin "blockade" constitutes a threat to peace and the Security Council should say so clearly, and
- (2) The lifting of the "blockade" should not be made conditional on the convening of a new meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers.

There was no sign that the Security Council would be called within the next 24 hours to re-open its Berlin debate.

The United Nations Political Committee today resumed discussion of a one-third cut in the "Big Five" armaments.

Britain called on the Soviet Union to endorse the Western majority of the U.N. Commission of conventional armaments.

The resolution, which was tabled before the Committee in opposition to the Soviet resolution calling for a one-third cut in the armaments of the Big Five Powers and the destruction of atomic weapons, stated:

"The General Assembly considers that it is of urgent importance that the peoples of the world should be relieved of the burden of competitive armaments and the sense of insecurity which such armaments generate."

MINORITY'S REFUSAL

It recalls that the Assembly has urged the expeditious fulfilment of the terms of reference of the Atomic Energy Commission, but that the minority in that Commission, hitherto, refused to accept the proposals approved by the majority as the basis for action.

It notes that the large majority of the Commission for Conventional Armaments set up by the Security Council have agreed upon the general principles upon which a system of regulation and reduction of armaments should be based, but

GRAVITY OF SITUATION

"It recognises the gravity of this situation and the importance of bringing about that increase in international confidence, which is an essential pre-requisite for an agreement on disarmament and security problems."

IT ENDORSES

"It endorses the general principles considered by the majority of the Commission for conventional armaments as necessary to the regulation and reduction of armaments and armed forces. In particular the principle that such regulation and reduction can only be put into effect in an atmosphere of international confidence and security, and the principle that any system of disarmament must include an adequate system of safeguards."

The British resolution concludes by urging all nations, and particularly those constituting the minority in the Commission, for conventional armaments, to co-operate to the utmost of their power in the attainment of the objectives mentioned.

The Canadian delegate, Mr Lionel Chevrel, expressed his country's strong support for the British resolution and described the Soviet proposals as "essentially meaningless."

"Why should we be asked to pool our security with a nation which will not, and is determined not to reveal to the world what it is doing?" he asked.

DISTRUSTFUL

Dr. Constantin Tsaldaris, Greek Foreign Minister, told the Committee that he could not trust any book scheme for partial disarmament any more than he had faith in the other "substanceless proposals," which amounted to a mere shelving of the disarmament problem.

Dr. Tsaldaris said that he would like to have a system of international arbitration "which would allow threatened people to mobilise the universal conscience for their own defence."

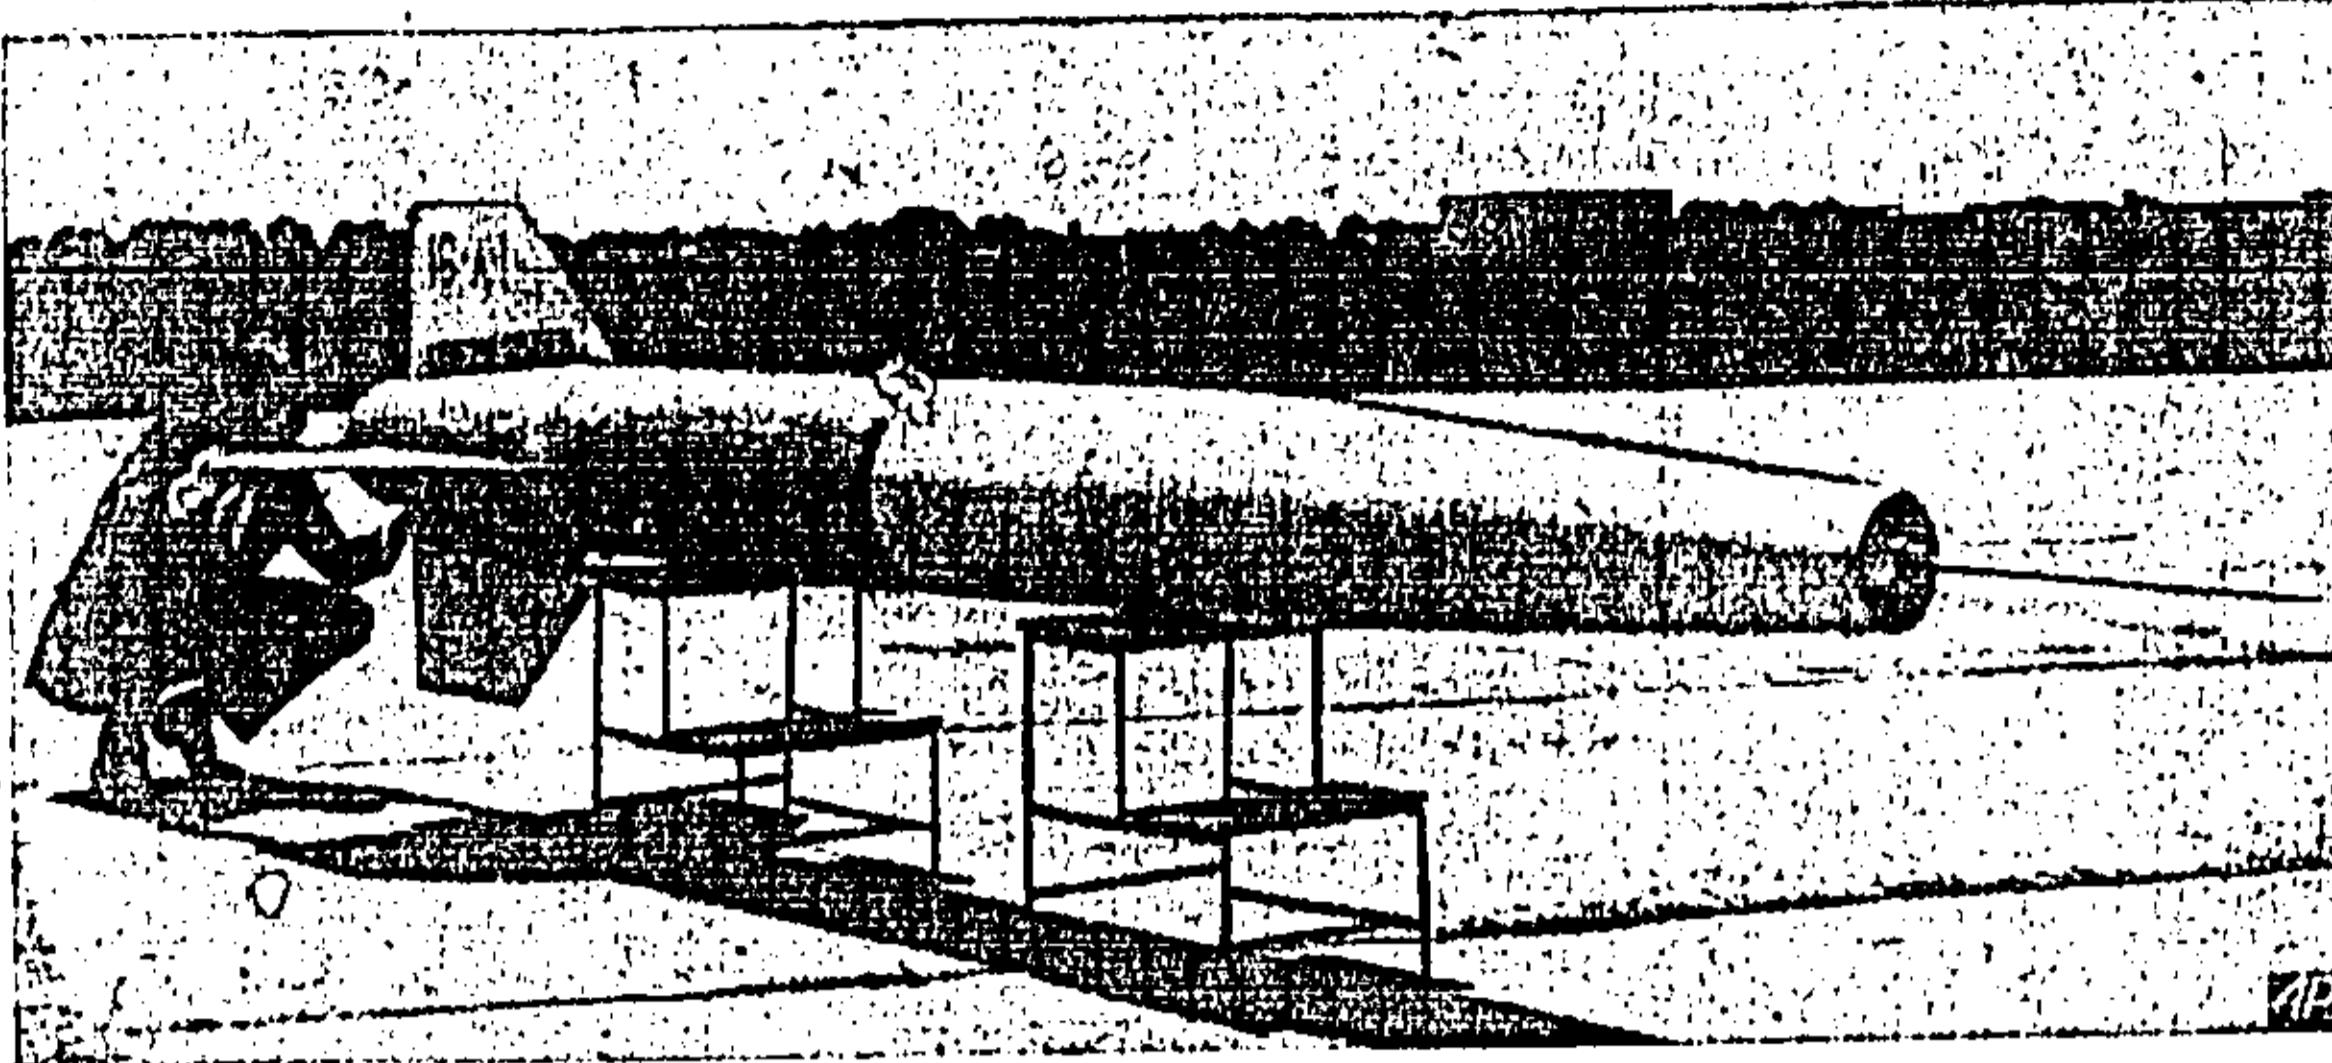

"What about the new weapon?" he asked the Committee. "The secret army from beyond the borders, deviated in a neighbour's country to upset the peace of small nations—are they to disarm too?"

The French delegate, M. Alexandre Pinaudi, also rejected the Soviet proposal as "over-simplified and unrealistic."

He passionately appealed to the Soviet Union and the "associated countries" to show a spirit of co-operation in the work of the United Nations.

ULTIMATUM SENT TO UN

Threat By Egyptians

NEGEV CONFLICT

Haifa, Oct. 11.—The United Nations Truce headquarters announced tonight that it received a virtual ultimatum from the Egyptian Military Command over the conflict on two strategic points in Northern Negev.

The announcement said that the Egyptians threatened to resume war at an early date unless the Israeli troops were ordered by Truce headquarters to evacuate the contested areas.

The situation south-east of Gaza "is steadily deteriorating," the announcement said.

There has been a total blackout however, on detailed news of the Negev conflict. A special investigation team was sent to the scene and will report back in a few days.

The announcement said that similar complaints were made by the Israelis against Egyptians previously, but were not accompanied by implied threat of action.

A United Press report from Tel Aviv tonight said that one of the two strategic heights contested by the Israeli and Egyptian forces was Kuneitra.

OIL PROSPECTING

Reliable sources said that the Palestine Development Company, a subsidiary of the Iraq Petroleum Company, has been prospecting at 2,200 feet since last winter, but abandoned the area last spring when fighting broke out.

These sources said that the area was now held by Israeli troops but the Egyptian Military threatened drastic action unless the Jews evacuated the height.

There is no information here on the identity of the other contested height. Official sources said they knew nothing about the Negev dispute.

The Government, however, ordered new air raid precautions indicating that a major outbreak of hostilities is anticipated.

The Government-inspired press thundered today that if Truce violations continued, war is inevitable. United Press.

Half A Million Miners Await Railwaymen's Strike Decision

Paris, Oct. 11.—Half a million miners and other workers on strike in France remained adamant today awaiting the vote of the railwaymen, who were to decide whether or not to join their ranks. Some railway workers were already out.

The General Confederation of Labour, the chief organisers of the strike, at their annual Congress here today, heard no hint from their Communist secretary, M. Benoit Frachon, of any settlement except on the workers' terms. He said a national general strike was not contemplated at present.

Political observers, however, concluded from his speech that the Communists intended to continue the pressure by all means available for the overthrow of the Government even if this were not to lead to a Government with Communist participation.

An intensification of the struggle between the Communists and the Government was foreshadowed.

M. Frachon's two and a half hours speech was mostly devoted to attacks on "American imperialism and the Marshall Plan." He urged a new Government, including the Communists, which would reverse the present foreign policy of alignment with America and the Western Union.

PRICES SHOOT UP

M. Frachon said that in 1938 the capitalists got 29 percent of the national income while in 1948 they got 42.5 percent. Salaries, on the other hand, he said, only took 38 percent today as against 45 percent in 1938.

Prices had nearly trebled between August, 1946, and October 1, 1948, while wages had less than doubled.

Further increases in prices would take place shortly.

Attacking the Western Union five-power military agreement, he said: "They want to include France in a bloc of aggression and the French Government is consequently being forced to have a military budget of 450 milliard francs."

"They want France to be the bridgehead of American expansionism against Soviet Russia and Frenchmen to be its infantry cannon-fodder. But the French working class will never agree to serve these American objectives."

He held out no hope of a settlement except on the Confederation's own terms.

NOT TO YIELD

This speech came within 24 hours of a categorical statement of the Minister of the Interior, M. Jules Moch, that Moscow has ordered the French Communist Party "to sabotage Marshall aid by all means" and its members "to begin operations in September."

The impression made by M. Frachon's speech in French political circles was that the Communists would not yield on the strike issue.

M. Victorien Duguet, Communist Secretary General of the French Miners Federation, told the Congress that if the Soviet disarmament proposals were accepted, France could do without Marshall aid.

M. Duguet, who was asked to open the Congress, which began in France entered its second week, "as a mark of homage for the strike being conducted by the striking miners," described the striking miners as "warriors."

In his annual report, M. Frachon defined the CGT's aims:

To fight against rising prices. To fight for higher wages. To secure a minimum wage of 16,000 francs.

MASSACRE OF BRITISH SOLDIERS

Most Sordid Story Of World War II

Hamburg, Oct. 11.—Two British soldiers who survived a massacre of British troops in Flanders in 1940 on Monday faced the men accused of machine-gunning to death about 90 of their comrades.

Before a military court here was former SS Company Commander Fritz Knoechlein, 37, charged with the war crime of killing unarmed prisoners of war.

The prosecutor described the massacre as "the most sordid and dishonourable story of anything ever undertaken by an SS unit."

He said although the massacre became known to the British authorities in 1943, no one believed it. They discredited the story as fantastic when told by one of the two survivors after he had been repatriated.

Post-war investigations and the discovery of the mass grave confirmed his story however.

The shooting occurred after a small group of British soldiers surrendered to overwhelming force at Panadis Pas De Calais in the 1940 breakthrough of the German Army.

MOWN DOWN AT GRAVE

The men, about 90 all told and mostly from the Second Battalion of the Norfolk Regiment, were disarmed. They were then marched into a field where a grave had been dug. There they were mown down by machine gun fire.

The prosecutor alleged that Knoechlein was the officer who ordered the gunners to kill the defenceless men.

Living men in the heap of bodies were bayonetted or shot with pistols.

But two men survived. One of them, Albert Leonard Pooley, told his story on Monday morning.

Miniature

Dishes, Real Budget-Saver

By ALICE DENHOFF

SCALING good things down to small proportions is a good way to keep the table budget money in line, since it has been argued that so much of what is bought and prepared goes to waste because of too generous portions. Here are some bite-sized dishes, nice for economy and good for fun and variety. Youngsters, especially, dole on miniature viands, and hearty eaters will readily consume a special individual serving, such as stew served in a custard cup, and will come back for seconds.

To perk up stew and stretch meat, try bite-size bran dumplings. To make 12-16 delicious little dumplings, sift 1½ c. flour, tsp. salt, 1bsp. baking powder together. Beat one egg until light. Add 1bsp. melted, cooled fat, ½ c. bran and ¾ c. milk. Add liquid mixture to dry ingredients; stir only until flour disappears. Drop batter by teaspoonful on top of hot meat stew. Cover lightly; let simmer for 20 min. without removing cover.

Meat Loaf

Meat loaf takes on new interest when it is served in small individual loaves. To serve 4-6, mix together one lb. ground raw beef, 1bsp. one chopped onion, ¼ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper and one c. bread crumbs. Combine ¾ c. mashed banana (1-2 bananas) and ¼ tsp. dry mustard; mix. Add to meat mixture; mix well. Form mixture into 4 or 6 individual loaves and place in well-greased baking pan not too close together. Bake at 350° F. for 50-60 min., or until done.

Midget cheese puffs go nicely with a beverage before dinner. To prepare 24 small puffs, beat 2 egg whites until stiff; add 4 tsp. flour, cayenne pepper to taste, and 2 c. grated cheese. Mix thoroughly; form into small balls. Roll in one c. fine bread crumbs. Fry in deep hot fat (350° F.) until golden brown. Serve piping hot on toothpicks.

Not Encouraged

More than three-quarters of the parents whose children play no instrument say that no one has encouraged them to start their children on a musical instrument. The church was named as the most important factor outside the home in stimulating an interest in music.

Suppose the schools took over the sole responsibility for educating in instrumental music, providing free practice on musical instruments. Would there be more playing of musical instruments? In the home and the owning of more such instruments? Anyway, we hardly can expect most schools to take over this responsibility right away. In the meantime, parents will have to be responsible, chiefly for the study of music, which does much in refining the temperament of a child.

MRS OKSANA KASENKINA'S OWN STORY

WHEN my husband, Demyan, was warned by the friendly chairman of the local Soviet to leave town, there was no place for us to go. He was haled before the Cheka, as the dreaded secret police was then known, subjected to a rigorous interrogation and made to fill out an exhaustive questionnaire, but was allowed to go.

This became part of the pattern of our life in the years to come. Not only Demyan, but many teachers, professional people and former merchants—the so-called bourgeois elements—were subjected to periodic interrogations or arrests. Whenever there was a change of the commissar, and that happened often, there would be fresh waves of Red terror. The prosecution of Demyan would be renewed. After a hard day at school, often in a half-empty classroom, he would sometimes come home with the disturbing announcement:

"They called me again. I must report tonight. Will there ever be an end to this questioning?"

Through the years he filled out scores of interminable questionnaires, each one aimed at catching the suspect in some discrepancy or mistake as compared with his previous answers. Having once been marked, as a former commissioned officer during World War I in the Czarist army, Demyan was a perennial quarry for the inquisitors of the Cheka, which was later renamed the GPU, and then the NKVD.

The fact that my father was a working man, whose mechanical skill was highly valued, stood us in good stead. My husband's erstwhile protector, however, the chairman of the Soviet, was removed from his post from politics, is a lie, a hypocrisy. We teachers were taught that, according to Lenin, there is no such thing as independent education; that the school system had before been a tool of capitalism and was now to be converted into a tool of Communism.

Today, the former Russian school teacher who jumped to freedom from the window of the Russian Consulate in New York continues her account of the persecution of her husband under the Soviet dictatorship. She relates the story of how Communism came to the schools, how the teachers were terrorised, how they were mobilised into shock brigades to conduct propaganda favouring collectivisation of the farms, and how the vagabond children overran the country. Her story was told from her hospital bed in New York to Isaac Don Levine, who prepared it for publication.

such as his, "A Confession," were taken out of circulation. Certain writings of the great Ukrainian poet, Shevchenko, for instance, at one time suffered a similar fate, only to be restored to official favour when the policy changed.

The life of a Soviet teacher in those days was doubly trying, for we had to go through a course of political re-training. The idea of freedom in education was dumped overboard. Instead, we teachers had dinned into our ears Lenin's slogan, "The school, apart from life, apart from politics, is a lie, a hypocrisy." We teachers were taught that, according to Lenin, there is no such thing as independent education; that the school system had before been a tool of capitalism and was now to be converted into a tool of Communism.

Check on Teachers

COMMUNIST Party inspectors would unexpectedly appear in the classrooms to check the teacher's adherence to the propaganda line. There was the case of Popova, our fourth grade history teacher, who, in the presence of such an Inspector, failed to explain Napoleon's invasion of Russia according to the new Leninist interpretation. The Inspector flew out of the room and exploded to the director:

"Huh, what a lesson!" He instituted an immediate investigation into her origin and background and found that she was the daughter of a priest. "Well, that explains everything," he exclaimed. "What can one expect from the daughter of a priest. She must be a counter-revolutionary!"

The slightest deviation from the plan laid down by the ruling Communist Party meant an inquisitorial scrutiny by the secret police of the past and pedigree of the instructor. The official teaching plan called for our tying up everything, from botany to geography, with the class struggle. The heresy hunt started many a person on the road to exile or execution. A teacher with a near relative who had before the Soviet revolution been politically active in non-Communist—be it even socialist or democratic—parties, was subject to unremitted persecution. Although we avoided all outside political activities, my husband and I were never sure of tomorrow.

Violent Change

A VIOLENT change came into our lives following the rise of Stalin to supreme power in 1924—the launching of the first Five-Year Plan, and the drive to collectivise the peasantry with fire and iron. It was as if a second revolution had struck us all. Only distant rumblings of the struggle for power in the Kremlin between Stalin and Trotsky and other factions, after the death of Lenin, reached us.

The era of the NEP—Lenin's New Economic Policy—was abruptly ended by Stalin. We had regarded our lot as hard and oppressive during that period, but we were soon to look back upon it as the years of relative safety and ease.

In the twenties, there had been considerable recovery from the ravages of the revolution. Houses were put in repair, farm stock was replenished, and the limited private trade permitted under the NEP filled the markets with goods. Even if new clothes were scarce, the second-hand peddlers had a variety of garments for sale.

My mother owned two Singer sewing machines, one of which was a hand machine, and for years our entire family was clothed by remodelling old clothes. A man's suit or topcoat would be converted into a boy's suit, then into a skirt or jacket, then into part of a quilt or boudoir. Every piece of cloth was used over and over again until it completely disintegrated.

With the coming of Stalin's planned industrialisation campaign, the acute scarcities in everyday goods were upon us again. Rigid rationing forced to pursue. During the first decade of Soviet rule, the educational system was based on the so-called "complex" method. It was a grotesque distortion of the progress, also, of relating schooling to modern life, but under Russian conditions it was putting the cart before the horse. Marks and examinations were regarded as capitalist inventions.

In the teaching of botany, for instance, I had to experiment with food plants and flowers, with medicinal herbs and agricultural pests, so as to enable the students to carry the useful knowledge outside the school, to help their parents and the community. In theory, this might be useful in a highly developed civilisation. In practice, it was a spree for the children and an ordeal for the teachers.

By the time my husband graduated from the Lugansk Institute in 1931, I got my diploma one year later—the "complex" method had been discontinued by the script leap by Stalin's orders. Discipline was restored in the schools. Instead of serving the subjects in one educational review, we returned to the time-honoured system of teaching basic subjects separately. Stalin's new Commissioner of Education for Soviet Russia, Bubnov, had come from the Red Army, where he had established the propaganda and educational networks.

The Kolkhoz

STALIN, however, did not abandon S. Lenin's maxim that education under the Soviets is a weapon in the hands of the Soviet state. Stalin improved upon it and made it our watchword that knowledge of the laws governing the proletarian revolution, the victory of Communism, must be regarded as a compulsory branch of science.

All this went hand in hand with the Five-Year Plan which, in turn, was linked with the drive to deprive the peasants of their private holdings and to force them into the kolkhoz—collective farms—system. The vast majority of the peasants, passively, and some actively, resisted the Communist campaign of expropriation and regimentation.

(Copyright 1948 by U.S. Features Syndicate, Inc. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

We teachers were ordered into shock brigades and mobilised to conduct propaganda in the villages in favour of collectivisation. On paper this was to be accomplished by persuasion and education, on a voluntary basis. But the peasants just could not see the benefits of surrendering their strips of land to the produce of their own toil and to state-managed farms run by Communist commissars.

I remember how gullible they were when we addressed them in the villages. We had been given explicit instructions to carry out. Our assignments were watched over by party officials. Yet when we painted to the peasants the made-over picture of the glowing future, in which mechanised agriculture would yield plenty for all, the peasants were more than sceptical.

Crops Hidden

"The more you work, the more you produce," one of them spoke up to me, "so don't hand us that sable!" The tillers of the soil just would not believe that there were any short cuts to the abundant life.

The government soon had to resort to violence. The secret police, reinforced by special military units, was put in charge of grain collection, as the peasants hid their crops. The Soviet government, sorely in need of export goods to buy machinery abroad, thus denuded the countryside of its produce. While flamboyant posters in schools and on the streets proclaimed the approaching victory of socialism, the struggle for bread was once more felt in every home.

A new tide of terror began to grip the land, threatening the existence of every hard-working farmer, including the family of my father-in-law, Nikita Kasenkin.

THE 72-year-old American grandmother who wrote the play "Abdication" said: "If I could have five minutes with the chief character I could make him like it."

She was telling me in her Manhattan flat why she wrote the play.

"It was written with a great love for England," said the 72-year-old author, Mrs. H. T. Lowe-Porter, of New York. "He would

The King enters, sits on the throne—then steps down to make way for his brother.

But all is not over. Now the ex-King finds the crowds have come to stare, though he travels unattended and by night. He is tormented that he may have failed in his duty. And he is very sad.

I asked Mrs. Lowe-Porter why she wrote the play.

"I was in England in 1930," she said. "I studied politics and I saw a war coming even then. British dynastic troubles on the eve of a great war were just made to order for a chronicle play. I started it in 1937."

Mrs. Lowe-Porter has lived at Oxford much of her life—from 1908 till shortly before the war. Her American husband read paleontology there. Her three daughters (the oldest 38) were born and brought up in Oxford.

Grandmother of seven, she is imperturbable, with vivid blue eyes and long grey hair, twisted in plait on top of her head.

ROMANCE? NO

There had been a fire next door when I called at her Manhattan riverside flat. Firemen swarmed all over the building. But dressed in a blue jersey ankle-length lounging suit, Mrs. Lowe-Porter was undisturbed. As we talked, the radio played dance music. Gaily she twiddled her thumbs.

"For 28 years I've been the authorised English translator for Thomas Mann," she said.

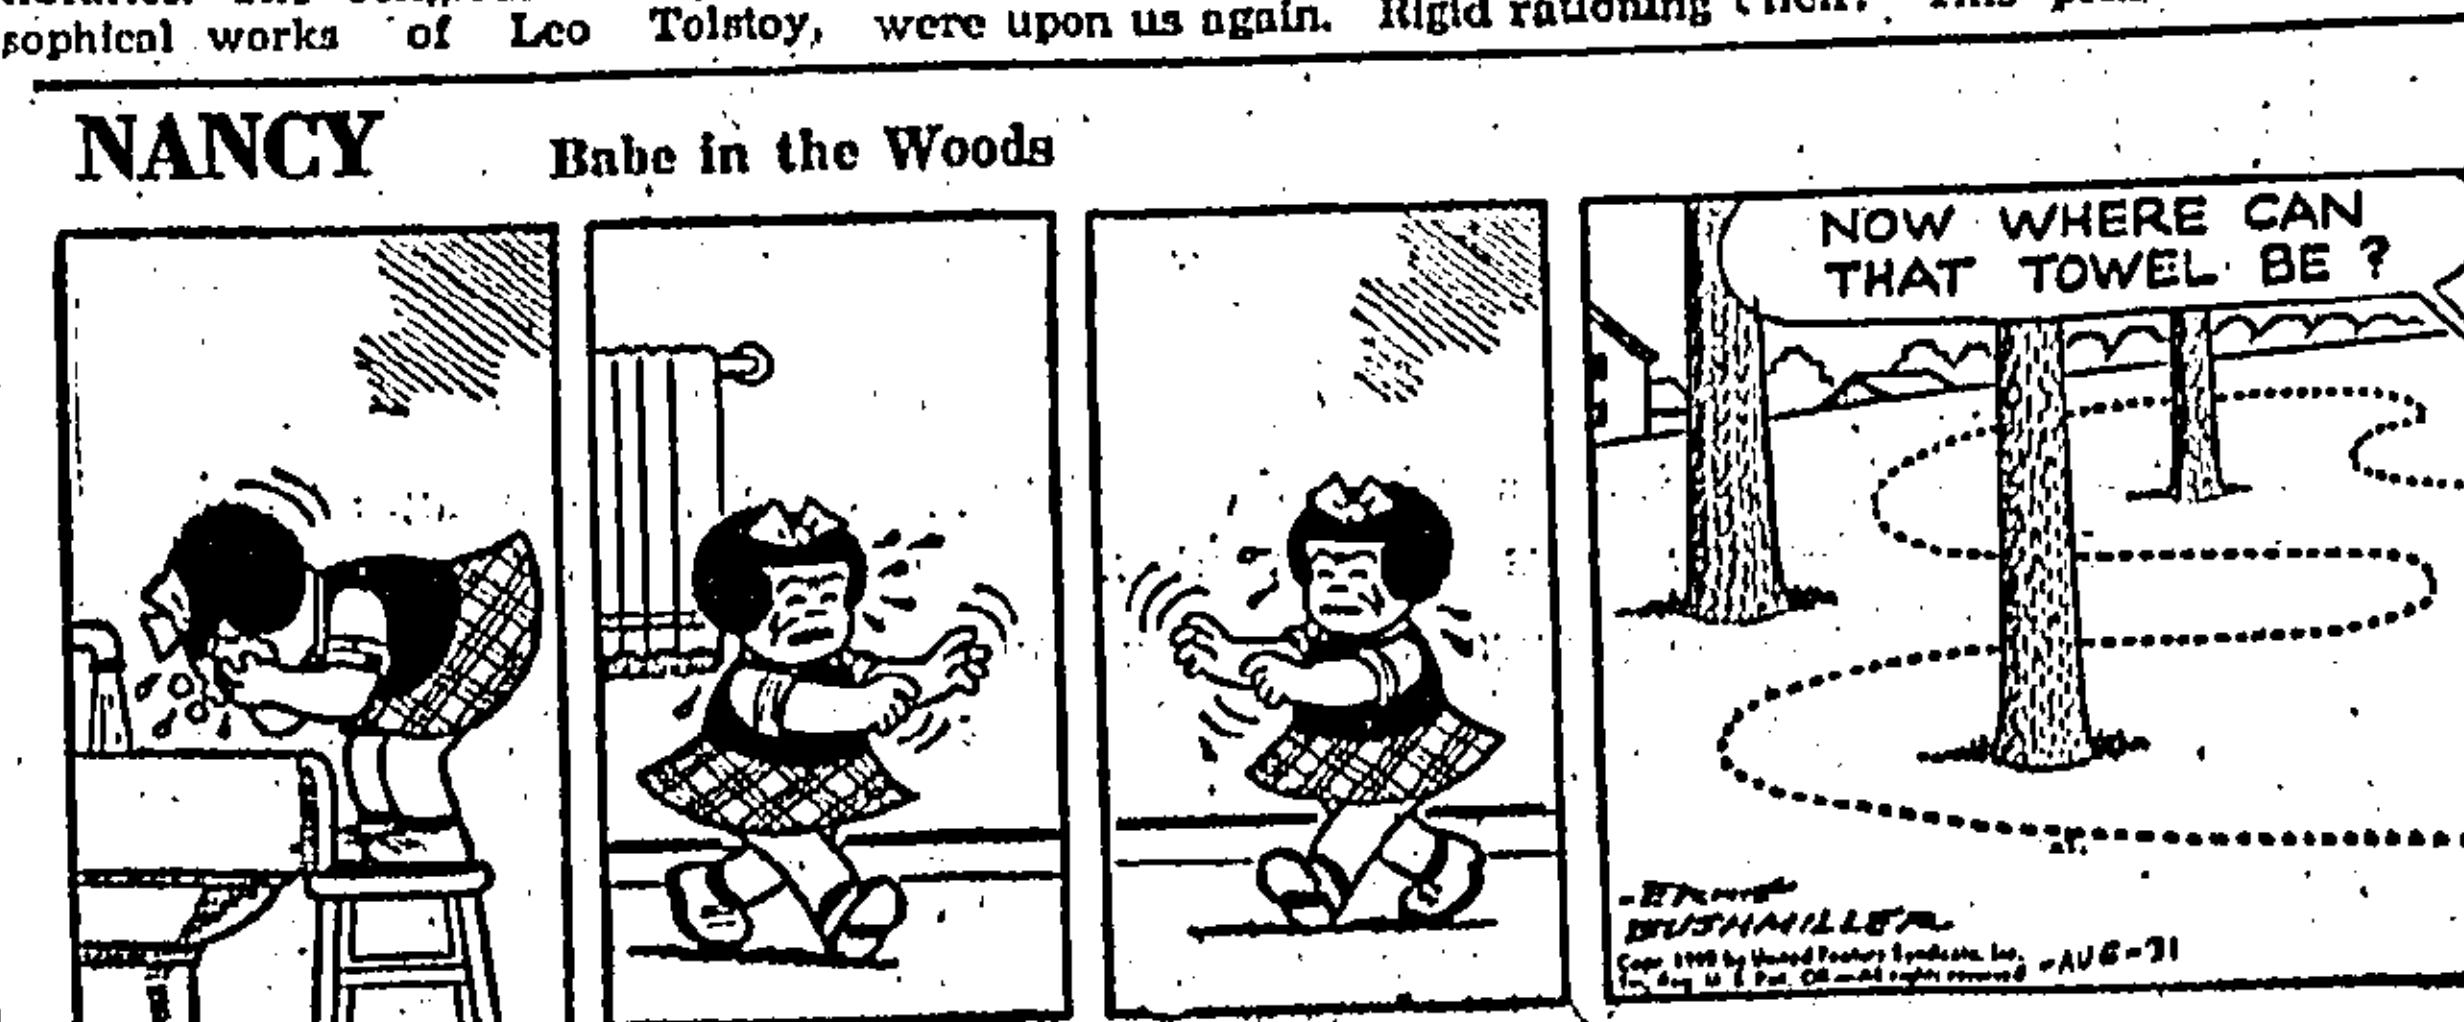

"I still have the job working at Princeton's Institute for Advanced Study.

"No, it wasn't the romance that made me write 'Abdication.' I've studied chronicle plays and I like writing in 17th century English."

"I did the best I could for the characters, of course, but the historical importance of the events attracted me most. Thirty-four actors have speaking parts, and the play doesn't take sides."

Mrs. Lowe-Porter is planning a visit to Dublin soon. She hopes her play will still be running. From there she will go to London to stay with one of her daughters, Mrs. P. M. Smeds, of Clifton Hill, St. John's Wood.

How American Aid Is Being Used In China

Washington, Oct. 11.—The State Department announced today that $88,275,170 in military aid funds have been transferred to Chiang Kai-shek's hard-pressed government since last April. The money represents about 75 percent of the $125,000,000 in military aid funds which the 80th Congress voted to help the Nanking Government fight the Communists.

Plan To Open New Corridor To Mukden

Nanking, Oct. 12.—The current Nationalist successes on the Manchurian front northwest of Mukden and in the Liao-tung Peninsula give rise to the belief that the Government is making efforts to open up a new corridor to Mukden from the sea.

Government forces driving against Yingkow were unofficially reported to have recaptured the port on the west coast of the peninsula, which would provide an alternate port from which the Government could move in supplies to Manchuria if Hulutou, across the Gulf of Lingding, is menaced by the Communists.

The drive against Red-held Changwu, 63 miles northwest of Mukden, would eliminate the Communist supply base and make it easier for the Government to open up a new corridor to Mukden from the southeast. Red pressure on Chinchow, which is at present valueless in the Government staging centre, makes the opening of the new route necessary for continued possession of Mukden.

Taiyuan and Hsishihhotze, just south of Changwu, have been cleared of the Reds, according to pro-Government reports.

ATTACK ON TAIYUAN

Official confirmation of the recapture of Yingkow was not forthcoming but the report of a victory there by the Army organ, Peace Daily, gives a semi-official stamp to the report.

Fifty miles straight north of Mukden, the Government troops were reported to be pushing the Reds back in a battle for Fuku which, like Changwu, is a Red supply base. However, small forces were reported to be engaged in Fuku.

The return of the Communists to the attack of Taiyuan was confirmed in reports from the Shansi capital. However, pro-Government reports claimed that initial attacks resulted in failure. The Chinese Red Radio claimed that because of the capture of Tsinan, capital of Shantung Province, the Communists are now in a position to move "hundreds of thousands" of men against Shensi in another westward sweep.

There was little information on the progress of fighting in the vicinity of Sian, capital of Shensi province, but previous dispatches predicted that the Communists were manoeuvring for an attack on the city.—United Press.

Carried Cargo, Not Passengers

The master of passenger sampan was fined $30 or six days by Mr Cairns at the Marine Court this morning for carrying cargo.

Sub-Inspector Nippard reported that defendant had been stopped whilst proceeding from Chakolling to Shaukiwan, and it was found that he had on board 14 bags of sugar and two bags of rice.

Defendant pleaded that the cargo was not his and that a shopkeeper had requested him to take it to Shaukiwan. He charged 20 cents per picul as freight, and had a total of 12 piculs on board.

EXPIRED LICENSES

For failing to renew their licences which expire on June 30, the master of a B Class sampan and the master of a Class IV boat were each fined $10 or two days.

The master of a fishing boat, charged with failing to take out a licence, and carrying cargo, had his bail of $50 estreated, when he failed to appear in Court. He had a cargo of 700 piculs of wolfram.

The master of a junk also had his bail of $20 estreated, when he did not appear in answer to a charge of failing to take out a licence.

Spanish Charge D'Affaires

London, Oct. 11.—British diplomatic quarters today discounted reports that the Spanish Charge d'Affaires, the Duke of San Juan de la Mayor, was about to leave Britain to mark Spain's protest against the British attitude towards the Spanish problem.

A Foreign Office spokesman, however, refused to give an official denial of the reports which had been current during the weekend.—United Press.

17 DIE IN TRAIN SMASH

Bogota, Colombia, Oct. 11.—Seventeen bodies were recovered today from the wreckage of five rail-road cars that over-turned last night 32 miles north of Bogota in Cundinamarca Province.

Thirteen of the dead have been identified.

At least 28 people were injured, five seriously.—Reuter.

PWD LARCENY CASE:

Another Electrician Gives Evidence

Committee proceedings in the case against three Public Works Department employees charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government, fraudulent disposal by public servant and falsification of documents with intent to defraud, entered the fourth day at Kowloon Court before Mr Wicks this morning when another PWD electrician was called to testify on behalf of the prosecution.

The 17th witness for the Crown, Tong Chuen, told the Court of his assignment to work on the premises of the Cathay Pacific Airways Company—a non-Government concern—and of drawing electrical materials from the PWD workshop for installation at these premises. The defendants are Kwok Kwong, 40, PWD foreman, Austin Spary, 49, electrical inspector and Arthur Frederick May, 41, also an electrical inspector of the PWD.

Mr A. Hooton, Crown Counsel, assisted by Chief Inspector J. Johnstone of the Special Branch, is conducting the prosecution. Kwok Kwong is represented by Mr J. M. d'Almada Remedios, while Mr V. D'Alton is defending Spary on the instructions of Mr P. J. Griffiths. May is defended by Mr J. C. Stewart.

WORK AT KAI TAK

Recalling the Ching Ming festival (April 5, 1948) Tong said that shortly after this occasion he was detailed to work at the Kai Tak Airport Administrative Office by a chargehand, Au Pui. The work here lasted about a month.

Towards the end of April he was assigned by Au Pui to work at the premises of the Cathay Pacific Airways at the aerodrome. He was instructed by his chargehand to work at the electrical shop, radio and propeller room.

The day after he commenced work on these premises, two more PWD electricians were detailed to assist him. These men arrived on the workshop lorry together with wire, clips and nails drawn from the Hungton workshop of the PWD.

The three worked at these places for about seven days during which period they also installed four fluorescent lamps, also taken by Au Pui from the workshop store.

At the completion of the work the three were reassigned to work at the Administrative building at Kai Tak for three days.

Following these three days, Tong added, he and the other two workers were again detailed by Au Pui to work in the engine room belonging to the CPA.

SAW SPARY & KWOK

During this second working period at the CPA premises, he went back to install a fuse box which he had left undone on the previous occasion, and during the installation of the fuse box he saw both Spary and the first defendant, Kwok Kwong.

Kwok inquired about the work and he told him that it was completed. This conversation, said Tong, was carried on in the presence of Spary.

Shortly after the arrival of the two defendants, Mr Harris, the manager of the CPA, appeared and the three walked away.

Following the installation of the fuse box, Tong said he went to the engine room where he stripped the old wire. He was told by Mr Harris to stop this work but to work on the air conditioned room.

The next day he drew further materials handed to him by Au Pui at the Hungton workshop. Three more men were then assigned to work with the original three. The work at the air conditioned room was completed in about seven days, at the conclusion of which Au Pui handed him (Tong) six fluorescent lamps drawn from the workshop, to be installed in the air conditioned room. The installation of these lamps took two days.

Hearing is continuing.

In characteristic language he dubbed the Republican candidate "Thomas E. (or elusive) Dewey," and declared that he had failed to commit himself on any of the major domestic issues confronting the nation.—Reuter.

Wallace Attacks Churchill

Minneapolis, Oct. 11.—Mr Henry Wallace, the Progressive Party's Presidential candidate, has accused Winston Churchill of trying to create a London-Madrid-Wall Street axis.

In a campaign speech here last night, Mr Wallace said that Churchill, although a "great battler" in wartime, was the "most skillful and vicious scoundrel of the century of the common man in time of peace."

"An imperialist, he is working hand in glove with Henry R. Luce of Time, Life and Fortune, for a London-Rome-Madrid-Wall Street axis."

"I saw Churchill, by bluff and bluster, take over our foreign policy in 1940."

President Roosevelt, Mr Wallace said, had never let himself be overawed by Mr Churchill, "but Truman did."

"I believe we can no more afford to let blind, unreasoning hatred of Russia shape our foreign policy than we can afford to let that policy be shaped by the ideological affinity of a few scattered American traitors to Russia."

"We are struggling up to Franco of Spain, preparing the way for one of the most revolting and scandalous alliances in history."

"There is absolutely no threat to our security at the present time," Wallace added.—Reuter.

French Miners' Strike

Meanwhile, negotiations were due to take place today between M. Daniel Mayer, the Minister of Labour, and the leaders of the CGT to discuss the strike situation.

Railwaymen continued to vote throughout the nation today on the strike action which is already sporadic on the French railways. Train services were reported to be running normally.

The Minister of Transport, M. Christian Pineau, was receiving throughout the day delegations of the railwaymen's union. M. Mayer was to interview delegates of workers and employers of the Lorraine metallurgical industry.

The strike of the Paris taxidrivers who are seeking a larger gasoline allocation continued today. The drivers are awaiting the reply of the Ministry of Commerce, which is at present reviewing the gasoline allocation.

About 60 per cent of the textile workers in the Aube Department, Northern France, were on strike today.

Dockers at Algerian ports were to return to work today, and work at the Marseilles docks was resumed yesterday.

Cherbourg dock workers, including baggage porters, decided tonight to strike for 24 hours tomorrow. Instead of joining the nationwide dockers' strike on Wednesday, because they would otherwise lose the tips and overtime payment when the Queen Elizabeth and the Mauretania arrive.

The Queen Elizabeth is due to dock at Cherbourg on Wednesday morning, with 500 passengers for Paris. The Mauretania is expected early that afternoon, with 140 passengers for the French capital.

The coalminers' strike in the northern coalfields continued without incidents. The Minister of Industry, M. Robert La Coste, estimated this strike has already cost France the loss of 700,000 tons of coal, or 40 days' worth of gas and electricity.—Reuter.

BRITISH TROOPS MASSACRED

He said that the prisoners were marched towards a large hole in a field. The machine guns opened fire. He was hit and fell into the hole. Other men fell on top of him. Then there was more shooting with pistols and rifles.

After lying there for three or four hours he found another man, Private William Reginald O'Callaghan, was also still alive.

The two men dragged themselves away to a farm house. French villagers came to their aid.

Eventually because of the danger to the French villagers, they gave them themselves up.—Associated Press.

BERLIN SOLUTION HOPES FADE

"No work is possible in this organization unless everybody makes an effort to understand others, to accept at least a portion of the others' viewpoints," he said.

M. Farid added with intensity: "If the Soviet Union wants disarmament, really craves for disarmament, then let the representatives of the Soviet Union give us one little sign, one little glimpse, one little proof that the Soviet Union wants international co-operation. Give us a chance to take some step forward towards international co-operation."—Reuter.

RUSSIANS IN AIR CORRIDOR

Chief Of Staff To Montgomery

Berlin, Oct. 11.—Russian planes flying in formation circled a British airlift plane today in the corridor between Berlin and Western Germany.

The plane, manned by an Australian crew, was circled by a formation of five Yak fighters. The Russian planes stayed wide away from the British aircraft. Two other fighter formations were seen by the same plane in the distance.

The British authorities in Berlin registered a verbal protest with the Soviet authorities over the Russian announcement that air to air and ground to air firing practice and dive bombing manoeuvres would be held.—United Press.

Gene Bearden Saves The Game In Eighth Inning

By GAYLE TALBOT

Boston, Oct. 11.—Relief pitcher Gene Bearden went in with the bases loaded in the eighth, checked a Boston Brave rally and gave the Cleveland Indians the sixth and deciding game of the World Series today by a score of 4-3.

The screaming crowd of 40,103 saw by far the most exciting game reach a climax with the Boston rout of starting pitcher Bob Lemon in the eighth.

With the score 4-1 in favour of Cleveland, outfielder Tommy Holmes singled, shortstop Al Dark doubled and first baseman Earl Torgeson walked to rout Lemon with only one out.

Bearden, who had pitched the Indians to victory over the Boston Red Sox in the American League playoff, then shutout the Braves in the third game of the World Series, came in.

Pinch hitter Clint Connor's fly scored Holmes and pinch hitter Phil Musi singled across Torgeson but Bearden threw out outfielder Mike McCormick to end the threat.

The Indians, against starting pitcher Bill Voiselle, scored first in the third on doubles by outfielder Dale Mitchell and shortstop Lou Boudreau.

The Braves tied that in the fourth on third baseman Poo Elliott's infield hit, a walk by catcher Bill Salkeld and Mike McCormick's single.

In the Cleveland sixth, second baseman Joe Gordon hit a homer off Voiselle. Outfielder Thurman Tucker walked, went to third on first baseman Eddie Robinson's single and scored on an infield out.

WINNING RUN

The run which proved the winner was scored in the eighth of relief pitcher Warren Spahn, Sunday's Boston hero. Third baseman Ken Keltner singled and scored the big run on singles by Tucker and Robinson.

The victory was worth USS6,772.03 to each Indian. Each Brave

NATHOO BOARDS A PLANE

Bovingdon Airport, England, Oct. 12.—Nathoo, the only English entry in the Gold Cup race at Belmont Park on Saturday, boarded a chartered plane on Monday for New York.

The only other equine passenger was Bayeux 11, who will represent Belgium in the $100,000 race. He was picked up in Brussels.

Captain Butters, trainer of Nathoo, said he did not know who would ride the horse but added, "I am sending a cable from Prince Ali Khan in America, that he had engaged in good jockey."

Charlie Smirke, who has ridden 93 winners this season—fifth best record for an English jockey—had been engaged to ride Nathoo but decided against it. Smirke has engagements at Newmarket on Friday.

VICTORIA CLUB CALLOVER

London, Oct. 11.—Woodburn maintained his position as favourite for Wednesday's Cesarewitch when the card was called over at the Victoria Club here tonight. There was good support for Now or Never, who was made a clear second, favourite.

Only four horses were quoted for the Cambridgeshire, with Explorer and Specially standing as joint favourites.

Tonight's quotations were:

CESAREWITCH

9 to 1 Woodburn, 19 to 2 Now or Never, 100 to 7 Galant Scot, 100 to 6 Sire Smoke, 18 to 1 Regret; 20 to 1 Pipo and Grace Darling; 25 to 1 Vertencia and Sports Master.

Promoters In Revolt Against British Boxing Control Board

By ARCHIE QUICK

An attempt is to be made to break the shackles with which the British Boxing Board of Control have bound the game.

Promoters are in revolt and the bone of contention is the five percent nett gate which the Board claims and obtains from all tournaments.

An unofficial meeting is to be held among promoters who contend that the Board is not legally constituted, in fact self-appointed as well as being altogether too autocratic and secretive in its work.

The Board, on the other hand, says that since it came into being it has cleaned up the game, given better control to tournaments' management, improved the welfare of fighters and must have this income to continue its work.

It is a fact that from the recent £50,000 gate at the White City for the Mills-Lesnevich world cruiser-weight championship contest, the Board of Control pocketed a very handy £2,500 without having to do any work for it or take any responsibility or be involved in any loss financially except to provide an official to weigh in, an official to referee and produce two pairs of boxing gloves.

TOO MANY FREE SEATS

In addition promoters say an excessive number of ringside seats have to be reserved for Board of Control officials. Anyway these are generally taken from the Press seats.

Now that Marcel Cerdan, dynamic Frenchman, has beaten Tony Zale for the world middleweight title, Europe possesses three world titles and the possibility opens up for another world contest in Great Britain.

Dick Turpin, coloured Leamington champion of Britain and the Empire, is ready and willing, quite naturally, to meet Cerdan for the European and World championships and this is a fight that Jack Solomon can be very keen to obtain.

I do not think Turpin would stand much chance against the Parisian. I hear too that Cerdan is not so keen on fighting in Europe for pin money when he can cash in very considerably on his new honour in the United States.

I can imagine he will dominate himself there for a while rather than return to his native country and get involved in a match which might mean both the loss of crown and copper.

A WORTHY WINNER

Nevertheless, Marcel is a worthy champion as all who saw him fight his sole contest in this country will agree.

He has personality, can box and, above all, how he can fight! I doubt if there is anyone in the world at the moment who could live with him over the full championship-distance.

Paris, Oct. 11.—World Middleweight Champion, Marcel Cerdan, came back to Paris on Monday from Casablanca where he and his manager Lucien Roupp had been given a hero's reception.

COMBINED CHINESE TOO GOOD FOR THE REST

A Combined Chinese team that included seven South China Athletic Association players, including what was almost a complete SCAA defence, beat the Rest of the Colony by four clear goals before packed stands in yesterday's charity match at Caroline Hill.

Six members of the Services' Victory Shield side turned out for the Rest but proved no match for a side that included six of China's Olympic players. The Rest kept improving throughout the game, but they did not improve fast enough.

It was very much Ho Ying-fun's day. The South China outside-left played a tricky game throughout and was the inspiration of his side. The first goal came in the fifth minute when Kit Choo's Tang Kwong sum, a last-minute introduction to the line-up, coolly pounced the ball where it would tempt the keeper out. A disorganized scramble following on this ended in Ho Ying-fun forcing the ball in.

Having drawn first blood, the Chinese put up a cracking pace that lasted another 10 minutes. Again and again they swarmed to the attack while keeper Cordell and the two fullbacks, Wheeler and Tozer, repelled the onslaught.

It was only in the 14th minute that the Rest made their first excursion into enemy territory. There was a good movement on the left wing between Kieran and Clarke and the former even had the Chinese goalie beaten only to have left-back Tse Kam-hung clear off the very goal-line.

The Chinese, having weathered this storm, immediately returned to the attack, their second goal coming in the 16th minute as inside-right Chu Wing-keung netted from a fine pass by Ho Ying-fun.

The Chinese kept up the attack and at half-time approached the game became more interesting as it slowly began losing its one-sided flavour.

Clarke was keeping Hau Yung-sang hard at work clearing and from one of his centres Redman seemed to have the goal at his mercy for a brief moment and the Chinese goalie had to make a save at point-blank range.

A few minutes later a Kieran and Redman movement got through once more and the Chinese custodian had to run out to snitch the ball from practically off the Rest centre-forward's foot.

SECOND HALF

The half-time score was 2-0. The second half started with a much-improved Rest attack and the Chinese goalie was soon put to the test, well-weathered, as Clarke attempted a hard low cross-shot.

This lasted but a brief spell and the Chinese were on the ball again. Cordell was in for a hectic time and rose nobly to the occasion, saving certain goals from first, Tang Yee-kit and then Chu Wing-keung, whose 20-yard drive he punched clear to the underside of the bar.

However game display put up by the defence, the Chinese attack was not to be stopped and the third goal came finally in the 21st minute as Tang Yee-kit burst through to score.

There was a brief spell as the Rest broke through the Chinese defence and Brown just crushed the crossbar with the Chinese goalie beaten. Redman had a glorious chance on the rebound but misjudged the agility of the Chinese goalie who practically snatched the ball off his foot.

The fourth-and last goal of the match came with 10 minutes to go as Tang Yee-kit, wandering about on the left-wing, picked up a loose pass and was through the defence with the speed of a sprinter to seal an easy one.

The Rest had the better of the remaining few minutes, but the Chinese were very definitely

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

Laying Off Finesse Wins Three N.T.

BY WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

ONE of the hardest workers for organised bridge in the midwest is Harry Lees, of St. Louis, Mo., vice president of the American Contract Bridge League. He served for some time as president of the Midwest Conference of the league. He headed the St. Louis delegation to the summer session of the national championships tournament in Chicago.

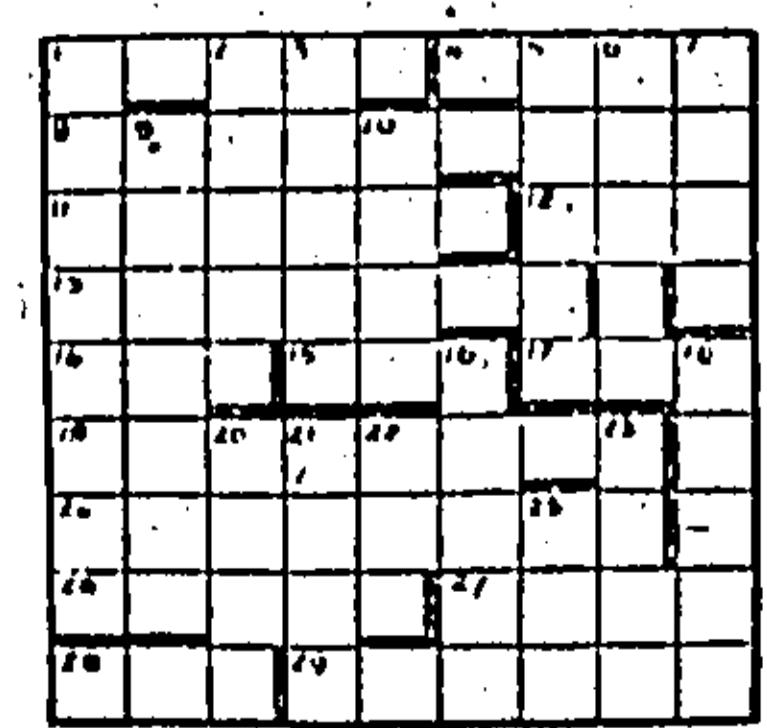

Although Lees is a bridge leader, he plays tournament bridge just for the fun of it. Nevertheless, he is always in there to take all the match points he can on a board. He certainly collected all of them on today's hand.

So far as his spade bid is concerned, I think that Lees has a theory that if nobody else bids spades, it might be a good idea to bid them yourself. But the spade did not stop West from opening the deuce of spades, and that was the opening at practically every table in the room.

Also, everybody put on the queen from dummy—that is, everybody but Lees. At all of the other tables East's king won the first trick, the king of clubs came back. And now try to make three no trump.

Lees went right up with dummy's ace of spades on the first trick, and led the king of hearts. Why? Because he counted one spade trick, four heart tricks, three diamonds and the ace of club—nine tricks, and that was what he made, for a top score on the board.

YOUR BIRTHDAY..... By STELLA

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 12

THOSE born on Columbus day will have many of the same characteristics which gave the explorer his success and fame: vaunting hope, ambition, and the will to succeed. While highly emotional and loving the dramatic, you seem to know how to channel these talents into progressive paths so that you actually accomplish many of the things of which you dream.

Your intuitions are keen and you should always follow them. Instead of the well-intended advice of others. Listen, but never act against your will on anything of importance, or you will find yourself making a mistake.

Although you may not make an outward display of your religious and spiritual tendencies, you are deeply influenced by them inwardly. Your code of ethics is high, and you believe firmly in the words, "By their deeds will ye know them."

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 13

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)—Powerful influences are in your favour if you do your full share now. Carelessness can bring accidents. Don't be hasty or impulsive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22)—Personal affairs may become confused, but if you concentrate on business matters, you will find all goes exceptionally well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Unexpected benefits may come to you through a business journey, but guard against a personal mishap due to carelessness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)—Some unanticipated pleasure may come your way. If a business deal is pending, it may bring increased profits or income for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—Better for travel or business than for marriage or romance. Be diplomatic and kindly with a loved one; you will be rewarded.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 21)—If you show initiative, you will gain what you desire even though opposition appears in your path. Advantage can offset disadvantages.

You are capable of a deep and lasting love. Once you give your heart, it is forever. You may not show it outwardly and your reserve may be mistaken for cool haughtiness except by those who know you well.

You men are shrewd, when it comes to business, and should be able to accumulate considerable material wealth during your lifetime. You women, on the other hand, are more interested in managing your own home with thrift. You are domestic at heart and want your own home and family. An early marriage should bring you exceptional happiness and contentment.

To find what the stars have in store for tomorrow, select your birthday star and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

ARIES (Mar. 22-Apr. 20)—Powerful influences are in your favour if you do your full share now. Carelessness can bring accidents. Don't be hasty or impulsive.

TAURUS (Apr. 21-May 21)—Complete all necessary work before noon-time and then plan to enjoy the pleasurable things of life.

GEMINI (May 22-June 22)—When your mind is at ease, everything else seems right. Complacent calm will make this day a better one than you expect.

CANCER (June 23-July 23)—Impulsiveness can only lead to trouble today; so be practical and business-like to secure the best possible success now.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Business matters are good. Unexpected benefits may come to you from work previously accomplished. Rewards will be commensurate with your efforts.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 22)—If you show initiative, you will gain what you desire even though opposition appears in your path. Advantage can offset disadvantages.

SCIENCE AT WORK:

NEW PLASTIC IRON LUNG FOR POLIO VICTIMS

By PAUL F. ELLIS

A PLASTIC iron lung that may save the lives of many infantile paralysis patients has been developed by scientists at Yale University.

It is being worn to prevent black-out of pilots of fighter planes manoeuvring at high altitude and speeds.

Same Principle Used

Dr Lampert said the new respirator employs the same principle of operation as the iron lung. When the muscles for respiration are paralysed, as in polio, life can be sustained by subjecting the patient to rhythmic negative pressure all over the body, except for the head.

The group includes Dr Harold Lampert, research associate in physiology, and Dr Ralph D. Elchorn. Dr Lampert first conceived the idea as a result of his work at Yale during the war on the pneumatic fever suit, an improved type of "anti-G" suit now increasingly being worn to prevent black-out of pilots of fighter planes manoeuvring at high altitude and speeds.

Tried On Animals

For weeks, Dr Lampert and his associates—experimented and found that a cylinder can be sufficiently tight to serve as a respirator, even though it is composed of light weight rubberised cloth, or pliable plastic sheeting so that it can be folded compactly into a suitcase for storage or transportation.

The Yale model is 32 inches long and weighs less than two pounds.

In structure, it is something like a thermos flask, with air-tight inner and outer walls, which sustain air pressure between them.

since that air was first played in Forthcawley by the celebrated hautist Mr Gerald Barry, now Principal of the Gong Hall Civic Centre?

BRITISH WHITE PAPER ON SOVIET INTRASIGENCE

Rights Of Western Powers In Berlin

London, Oct. 11.—Britain today blamed "Soviet intransigence" for the breakdown of four-power control in Germany and the Berlin crisis. In a 67-page, 35,000-word White Paper issued by the Foreign Office, the British Government declared: "The present situation in Berlin is the result of the failure of the four powers, owing to Soviet intransigence, to agree to a common policy for Germany."

The White Paper charged that the Russians' intransigent attitude had been shown "in breaches by the Soviet Government of the political and economic principles laid down at Potsdam."

"The Soviet Government has withdrawn its representatives from the Allied Control Council for Germany in Berlin and from the Berlin City Kommandatura. It was unilaterally declared that the Governments of the United Kingdom, the United States and France have forfeited their right to be in Berlin or to take part in the four-power occupation and administration of the city."

Graziani Defends His Honour

Still A Conquering General

Rome, Oct. 11.—Fascism's one-time "Lion of Africa," former Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, declared at his trial for collaboration with Germans in Rome on Monday that "I have always marched as a soldier—I would march even for a Communist Government."

He made this statement in a long rambling review of his life and career which he read from the dock.

The first session of his long awaited trial ended with a brief but enthusiastic demonstration in his favour by spectators packing the small public space in the small courtroom chosen for his trial at the Rome Palace of Justice.

Graziani repeatedly excused his action on the grounds of military regulation and duty. "A soldier does not mix in politics," he said. His statement was interrupted by a recess until Tuesday.

INTERRUPTS COURT

Throughout the morning, the Judge and Graziani's lawyers had trouble in getting him to drop the manner of a conquering general and conform to the behaviour of a prisoner. He repeatedly interrupted speeches by the judge, the prosecutor and his own three lawyers. "I will explain that" he shouted as the prosecutor read particulars of the charge against him.

In his statement Graziani asserted "the fact is that we are now asking for our African colonies to be returned to us. If I had not conquered them we could not ask for them back."

He blamed his eventual failure against the British in North Africa on the political intrigues of a "Colonel X." This man, Graziani said, turned Rome against him.

He called his arrest a horrible insult to the soldiers of the North who had fought in honour for the country.—Associated Press.

Abandonment Of Truman Plan Described As "A Narrow Escape"

New York, Oct. 11.—Senator Arthur Vandenberg, the Republican Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has described President Truman's abandoned plan to send Chief Justice Vinson to Moscow as "a narrow escape."

Speaking here last night, the Senator left his prepared text to state: "Now that we have gone to the United Nations we must intelligently avoid any unilateral independent action on our own account lest we confuse our friendly associates, cramp the Security Council and encourage our opponents to think that our appeal to the United Nations is either timid or insincere. I must say that we have just had a narrow escape upon this score at Washington."

Again departing from his prepared text, Senator Vandenberg said that

Marriage At Ninety-One

NO WAR IN NEAR FUTURE

—TRYGVE LIE

Paris, Oct. 11.—Mr Trygve Lie, the United Nations Secretary-General, said today that he was convinced there would be no war "within the foreseeable future."

Russia's Intentions

The result of the Moscow-Berlin discussions of August and September, the White Paper said, "has been to make it clear that the Soviet Government has no intention of reaching an agreement save on its own terms, the acceptance of which would have meant the immediate or progressive absorption of the western sectors of Berlin within the Soviet Zone economy and the whittling away of the rights and obligations of the Western occupying powers to a point at which the whole city of Berlin was under exclusive Soviet domination."

The right of the United Kingdom, the United States and France to be in Berlin is absolute and unqualified. The European Advisory Council agreement, from which this right derives, is completely independent of the Yalta and Potsdam agreements and the agreement on control machinery.

Denying the Soviet allegation that the Western powers had infringed the Yalta, Potsdam and control machinery agreements, the White Paper said that even if the allegations were true, "it could have no bearing on their juridical right to participate in the four-power occupation and control of Berlin."

Tracing the breakdown of four-power control of Germany, the White Paper said: "The main point of divergence between Soviet policy and that of the other Allies was the question of the economic unity of Germany."

Sabotaging Recovery

Condemning the Soviet refusal to participate in the European Recovery Programme, the White Paper said that in the light of this attitude, "it became clear that the Soviet claim to participate in the control of the Ruhr was, in fact, a claim to be allowed to sabotage the recovery of Western Europe."

Regarding the six-power London decision to establish a responsible West German Government and the steps taken to implement it, the document said: "These steps do not preclude the creation by four-power agreement of a Government for the whole of Germany."

"Indeed, in the face of the policies at present pursued by the Soviet Government in Germany, they constitute the most hopeful and progressive course which can be taken towards the reconstruction of German political life on a free and responsible basis and the reconstitution of Germany as a member of the community of European nations."—Reuter.

YWCA Directors Arrested

Prague, Oct. 11.—Two women directors of the Young Women's Christian Association in Prague have been detained by police since last Thursday night on charges that anti-government pamphlets were found in the Association's reading room in Central Prague. It was learned today.

Officials of the YWCA declined to discuss the situation. The Minister of Information said that neither the Security Police nor the Ministry of Interior would confirm the report last night.

The women are Mrs Hana Frantova, the General Director, and Mrs Vlencova, who has been the Prague Director.

The YWCA was nationalised last March.—Associated Press.

After the "complete Soviet reversal" in the Berlin Control Council, further direct discussion became transparent futility in the presence of this tricky, provocative and insidious Soviet run-around.

"We didn't resort to force as might over-easily have been our recourse in other days."

"We have resorted to organised reason and the conscience of human kind in the United Nations' forum. The Soviets cannot ignore this forum."

New York newspapers today devoted considerable space to comment—mostly unfavourable—on President Truman's Vinson plan.

The Republican Herald-Tribune said: "It denigrates the atmosphere and incendiaries a fashion with the problem of controlling the atomic President's Vinson plan.

The New York Daily Mirror: "It is a little frightening to know he had carried it so far—and in secrecy."

The New York Star: "It may not have been a bad idea. No honest man can say, on the basis of all others, provided both parties are of legal age and the bride is willing."—United Press.

inspections Of Colonies

Latest Soviet Demand

Paris, Oct. 11.—The Soviet bloc today demanded the United Nations inspections of the colonies and protested the Western Powers planned to use Africa as a war base.

Russia's A. I. Galagan introduced a resolution asking a yearly United Nations inspection of territories. He also asked the ruling powers to submit to political information about their colonies to the United Nations.

The charter obliges the administering powers to submit information only on social, economic and educational conditions.

Poland's Thaddeus Zabrowski said that the current African conference in London is being conducted in "secrecy" which makes us suspect it is not for the stated purpose of improving living and educational conditions."

Officials of the YWCA declined to discuss the situation. The Minister of Information said that neither the Security Police nor the Ministry of Interior would confirm the report last night.

He quoted a London Times editorial of October 5, to the fact that Africa must supply bases and men for the Western Union.

All Africa is being treated "as a reservoir for cheap raw materials," the Russian charged.

The Polish delegate said that the recent revolts in South-East Asia were the expression of desire for independence and "not fitful" columnas charged by the spokesman of the Colonial Office.—United Press.

Protection For Eloping Couples

Istanbul, Oct. 11.—Eloping couples in Istanbul now have official priorities at the marriage bureaus in order to escape pursuing parents, a priority order was issued after several couples complained they had to stand in line so long at the marriage bureaus the bride's parents managed to catch up with them and snatch the bride away before the ceremonies could be performed.

Sympathetic city officials have now ordered that all eloping couples must be married ahead of all others, provided both parties are of legal age and the bride is willing.—United Press.

S. African Industry's Complex Problems

STRIKES, DEADLOCKS AND NEW WAGE AGREEMENTS

Port Elizabeth, Oct. 11.—South African industry faces three complex problems. One is the drastic modification by the Malan Cabinet of the immigration policy inaugurated by the Smuts government, the second is how the programme of "apartheid" or the segregation of the races is to be applied in industry and the third, and by far the most immediate pressing problem, is the obvious signs of industrial unrest due to the rising cost of living.

Throughout the country the Department of Labour is dealing with strikes, deadlocks in collective bargaining and requests for new wage agreements and determinations. Tens of thousands of workers, European, coloured and African, are involved. The most serious threat is that of the gold miners whose grievances have been referred to a commission under the chairmanship of Dr H. J. Van Eck, who is also chairman of the Industrial Development Corporation.

There are deadlocks in the engineering industry, the electrical and motor assembly, in textile and sweet manufacturing and in municipal services. Reports from many centres reveal the deep concern of industrialists over the decision of the Malanite Cabinet not to take any action until 1950 in respect to the registration to trade unions for Africans.

Despite all that has been said in Parliament on the apartheid issue, a survey of prominent industrialists here indicates that this policy of segregation and separation is likely to have its first big test in the industrially expanding city of Port Elizabeth. There is an acute shortage of European labour, particularly semi-skilled. This has led to persistent suggestions that non-Europeans should now be employed in jobs hitherto held to be the preserve of the Whites.

SHORTAGE OF WORKERS

The development programmes of many firms, plus other major enterprises starting within the next four to five months, mean a shortage of about 3,000 European workers between the ages of 18 and 45. The stream of semi-skilled white labour from the country to the towns is now a mere trickle—for 40 or 50 jobs there are now two or three applicants.

Aptitude tests have opened avenues of employment for women in some factories. In others coloured workers have been tried. Two new factories here are to employ African exclusively.

The modified scheme of immigration is considered to mean a restricted flow of skilled technicians to South African factories at a time when skilled staff are urgently required. For example, Port Elizabeth's working population has recently increased by some 20,000 but this has not included many skilled technicians. Immediate expansion
